When a patient seeks nutritional advice, it is essential for both the healthcare provider and the patient to be working towards the same objective. It is equally important that each patient understand the methods that will be used to attain that objective. This will prevent any confusion or disappointment. Your initial evaluation may consist of the following:

1. Health Appraisal Questionnaire
Through this detailed questionnaire a determination can be made regarding the functioning of the various systems of the body (such as the gastrointestinal, immune, cardiovascular, urological, hormonal, and musculoskeletal systems.) It has proven as an invaluable tool to assist the body in better function and health.
2. Bioimpedance Analysis
This is an electronic evaluation clinically proven to evaluate tissue hydration levels, cellular health, toxicity levels, lean body mass and body mass index. This information directly correlates to the physical health of the body and is a measurable source to determine current status and improvement in body composition and cellular health.

The result of the above forms and analysis will be provided to you, as well as suggestions to improve your health. The evaluation is in no way meant to diagnosis any medical problem. Any suggestions made to you are not in any way to be considered prescriptions for any medical problem or health concern. Nutritional recommendations are made solely for the purpose of supporting the physiological and biochemical processes of the human body. You are under no obligation to follow any nutritional program or recommendations and any information you receive is strictly for educational purposes only.

The cost of the initial visit may or may not be submitted to your insurance company.
